

FROM OER THE SEA

England's Pauper Aristocracy
Lives at Others' Expense.

PLANTAGENET IS A BARBER

The Government Unable to Provide for Gentle Beggars—Niece of an Earl in a Bagnio.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The story of Gwyneth Maude and of her unhappy mother, who committed suicide yesterday on account of the shame and exposure of the daughter's theft, calls attention to the large and increasing number of pauper aristocrats who are gaining a living in this city by questionable means. It is said that a noble earl, noted for his dissipated manner of living, and whose escapades have not been confined to this side of the Atlantic, was amazed recently to find among the inmates of a disorderly house he visited his own niece, the daughter of a sister whom he had lost sight of for several years. The girl recognized the earl by his pictures, which she had seen. It is but fair to his lordship to say that he rescued the girl from her unfortunate surroundings and made some provision for the support of her and her mother.

It is said that last week, the younger brother of a baronet of ancient lineage was arrested, under an assumed name, for swindling. He gave the excuse that he was driven to crime by starvation, and was too proud to go near his brother, who was, indeed, not much better off. The victim of the swindler relented and the affair was hushed up. The case of Sir Henry Valentine Gould, the old Irish baronet, 85 years of age, who has been exposed as the stool pigeon in a literary imposture, is another instance.

Pauper Aristocrats.
Poor old Gould is in his second childhood, but has virtually nothing to live on. He comes from an ancient family, being descended from a mayor of Cork in the reign of Henry VII. He has gold fancies on his armorial crest, but that is about all the gold that is left in the family. He will probably not be prosecuted.

Another poverty stricken Irish baronet, Sir Gilbert Campbell, is serving a term in prison for swindling. The English system of civil service is chiefly devoted to providing places for the poor nobility and the poor relations of Irish nobility, but both classes are getting so numerous that the civil service, the church and the army are insufficient to provide for all, and many of them have to live by their wits or resort to honest employment.

Among the common and cab drivers of London are to be met men who were brought up in manors, but who have failed to stick to the places found for them by the influence of aristocratic kinsmen. As for trades and ordinary business, the aristocrats are crowding in at a rate that is alarming, even the humble trades having a few members who are trained at Eton and Oxford.

Plantagenet a Barber.
In a barber shop on the Thames embankment one may be shaved and have his hair dressed by a barber who claims descent from the Plantagenets, and whose name is certainly among the younger branches of one of England's ducal houses. He told a correspondent that he was given two hundred pounds, when he came of age, and a ticket to Australia, but that he did not like Australia, and when he came back he was determined to do something more for him. During his brief stay in Australia he learned a trade from necessity, and when he got back he took to shaving as a means of livelihood. He makes no pretense of concealing his identity, and as the matter is getting noised about, and his ducal friends are said to be very much shocked, it is possible that the barber will soon receive a substantial inducement to get out of the business.

Gladstone in Jail.
Mr. Gladstone is in good health, and likely to make his coming session interesting for the opponents of home rule. The premier is said to be very much stirred up over Lord Salisbury's article about the house of lords, and it is said by those who are supposed to know liberal secrets that should the house of lords reject a home rule bill passed by the commons Mr. Gladstone will seize the pretext to appoint not less than 200 liberal peers, consisting of men of ability from every walk of life. It is not believed, however, that the upper house will commit harakiri by obstinate opposition to a home rule measure.

Crowned Diplomats.
The visit of the Czarvitch at the Hofburg in Vienna has been the event of the week among the crowned heads on the continent. Although heralded by a chorus of semi-official denials that the Russian heir and emperor, Franz Joseph, would take place, the young man's presence in the Kaiserstadt has received much attention from the Austrians and French dailies. The efforts made by the imperial press, Elizabeth, to entertain his Russian highness, although she could not rally sufficiently to be in Vienna when Emperor William was stopping at Schoenbrunn, gave color to the report that Austria, Hungary and Russia were about to be reconciled, and to resume their historical friendship. The Austrian newspapers took up the idea, and even Prince Bismarck whispered, through the Hamburger Nachrichten, the warning that Germany would do well to look after her international flanks.

An Act of Courtesy.
In Paris the Vagaro Temps and Debats deprecated the prevailing impression that Russia might be making overtures to a member of the triple alliance. All three pointed out that as long as the three brothers of the czar, the grand dukes Vladimir, Sergius and Alexis, were hobnobbing with President Carnot and his cabinet in Paris, the French people need not fear that Austria would creep into Russian favor.

There is every reason to believe that the Paris newspapers are right and that as the official Czarvitch's visit to Vienna is an act of necessary courtesy. On Thursday Prince Bismarck again demonstrated that like the social democrats he is against everything countenanced by the government. On

CRITCHLOW SEEN SHOOTING

Very Damaging Testimony Proven by Young Samuel Stewart—The State Rests Its Case.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 19.—When the Critchlow murder case was resumed this morning Captain Cooper, who was in charge of the Pinkertons on the barges at Homestead on July 6, was placed on the stand and cross-examined by the defense. Witness said he, with about 200 men from New York and Philadelphia, left for Pittsburgh July 4; met the other men at Youngstown, O.; knew that there were no men brought from Canada. Witness had charge of the New York and Philadelphia men; Captain Norton was in charge of the Chicago men; Captain Hines was in command of all. Witness has been in the employ of the Pinkertons since 1887. He was on duty on the barges, excepting the last two weeks; had been detailed as detective for Barum's circus nine years; there were eight or ten regular Pinkerton men on the barges; Connors had been employed as race track detective; when barges approached Homestead revolver and knives were given to the men by Captain Hines; saw two boxes of Winchester rifles on the barges.

When men tried to land at Homestead a man threw himself on his back on the gang plank and began to fire at the men on the barge with a revolver. There were about twenty-five Pinkerton men on the boat at the time, about ten of them armed with rifles. The man on the plank did not fall and witness did not see any of the Pinkertons shoot at him. Witness was hit on the knee by a piece of iron fired from the cannon on the shore, and the other barges when he was shot. The men on the barges did not fire until witness gave them the command to do so. There were two or three hundred people on the bank at this time. They did not run away. A minute later a second order to fire was given, and after this the men fired as they pleased and the people on shore scattered.

Another MORGANATIC MARRIAGE.
A Bavarian Duke Weds a Beautiful Actress.

MUNICH, Nov. 19.—Duke Ernst Ludwig of Bavaria, having overcome the opposition of his family, was today married morganatically to the object of his affection, the beautiful Antonia Barbi. It being an impossible thing for a real duke to marry a lady without any title whatever, the only thing to be done was to give her one. This very serious obstacle was removed by creating a title for her, and she was married under the title of Countess von Barbi. Although the ceremony of the bride and bridegroom started for Kufstein, in the Tyrol, thence they leave for a prolonged tour in Italy. The Fraulien Barbi was an actress, and first attracted the attention of Prince Ernst while behind the footlights. She was singularly beautiful, and won the heart of the prince at once. The Prince Regent Luitpold, hearing of his infatuation, did everything possible to separate the lovers, but opposition only made them love more ardently.

Trial of a Priest's Murderers.
ROME, Nov. 19.—The trial is in progress at Palermo of two peasants who avenged themselves on a priest by pouring a solution of corrosive sublimate into the chalice which the priest used at mass. The priest died on the altar steps.

WORLD IS NO WISER.
Archbishops of the Roman Church Conclude Their Labors.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—The conference of the archbishops of the Roman Catholic church was concluded at 12:30 today. The session which closed the conference was a brief one. Cardinal James Gibbons of Baltimore presided, and the work of the day was chiefly the discussion of outstanding business connected with the regulations. It related to the organization of the faculty at the Washington University, but to what extent or in which direction the faculty will be recognized cannot be ascertained until the full report of the proceedings have been transmitted to the holy see.

The archbishops, including Cardinal Gibbons, will all leave the city without delay, while Vicar General Brady will proceed to St. Louis, bearing with him the name of the prelate, believed to have been appointed coadjutor of the archbishop of St. Louis. Each archbishop upon his arrival home will prepare his pastoral, which will contain in a general way the proceedings of the conference so far as they relate to his particular diocese.

Carnegie Men at Beaver Falls Give Up the Fight.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Nov. 19.—At 4 o'clock this afternoon the strike at the Carnegie mills was declared off by the three lodges of the Amalgamated association, after being in secret session all day. The men left the lodge rooms in a body and marched to the mill, a mile distant. Man after man made application for work, and in less than an hour over 100 men had been employed. It was not until the mill would start Monday morning at 7 o'clock, and all were requested to be on hand. Tonight the streets of the town are thronged with jubilant people. The men themselves feel as happy as any body, and are being congratulated on all sides. About 600 men are employed by the Carnegie company at this place.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—With reference to the statement that the Catholic university had been shown to be far from successful at the meeting of the Roman Catholic archbishops in New York, Bishop Keane, rector of the university, today gave out a statement in which he denies that the university is in an unsatisfactory condition or has not been as successful as has been expected. The bishop does not believe that the university was in any way discussed at the meeting of the archbishops.

Blaine Is Better.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—On inquiry at Mr. Blaine's house this morning a reporter for the United Press was informed by James G. Blaine, Jr., that his father was decidedly better. "The fever has entirely disappeared, and I think he will be up and about in two or three days. Father is subject to these attacks, and remains in bed now by the advice of his physician. We do not apprehend anything serious will result from his illness."

Mysterious Murder of a Detroit Drug Clerk.

ROBBERY NOT THE MOTIVE

Frank H. Kelly Found Dead in the Cellar of a Drug Store—Police Are Baffled.

DETROIT, Nov. 7.—About 6:30 o'clock this morning Patrolman Harris found the High street entrance to Caldwell's drug store open. He stepped inside, but could not find the night clerk or any other signs of life. Looking up Mr. Caldwell's residence in the directory he went after him. Mr. Caldwell reached the store about 7 o'clock and in company with Harris made a tour of the store. No trace could be found of the night clerk, either in his room or about the store. Finally Mr. Caldwell started to go down cellar, but found the door locked with the key on the upper side. Unlocking this Caldwell and Harris took a light and descended the steps. Upon reaching the bottom they found the lifeless body of Frank H. Kelly, the night clerk, lying in about the middle of the room on the floor. Coroner Downs was notified.

Smart Blase at Detroit.

DETROIT, Nov. 19.—There was a smart blaze that started at the Acme White Lead & Color works, and before it was extinguished about $10,000 damage had been done to the stock, mostly by water; insured. It is supposed that the fire was caused by the spontaneous combustion of oil rags. Henry Shadle, an employee of the firm, has his hands badly cut by falling, and another employee named Archie Beers had one of his hands painfully burned.

Looking for Eugene Hutton.

BAY CITY, Nov. 19.—Residents of the south end of this city are much disturbed over the disappearance of Eugene Hutton, prominent in Macacabee circles. Hutton was treasurer of South Bay City tent and had in his hands the proceeds of two assessments collected from local members of the order. He also held about $300 donated by other tents for relieving Macacabees who suffered serious loss by the big fire last summer.

Homesteads on Tuesday.

MARQUETTE, Nov. 19.—The city is filling up with applicants on the Bay De Norquette grant, about 100 being already in town preparatory to forming a line at the land office, where applications will be received next Tuesday. Some excitement was caused by a premature attempt to form a line this morning, but the would-be line disappeared after an animated consultation with a land-lord.

Fire at Saginaw.

SAGINAW, Nov. 19.—A fire broke out in a pile of lumber on the Michigan Central docks, and for a time threatened a big conflagration. Fortunately the rain poured down heavily and the fire department, though the place was difficult of access, managed to get several streams upon the blaze after about 7,000 feet of lumber had been destroyed, and extinguished it.

In a Safe Harbor.

AU TRAIN, Nov. 19.—The steamer Pontiac, which left Marquette for Sault Ste. Marie Thursday night in a heavy storm, tonight prevailing, and whose non-appearance since then has caused great anxiety, is sheltered in Grand Island harbor. She made the harbor in safety Thursday and has been waiting there since for the gale to abate.

Lost His Grip.

BAY CITY, Nov. 19.—Charles Benthin, a cigar maker, ran away from home last night at midnight, and jumping off the dock reached his home. He was found this morning. He had grown despondent because he had lost employment and found he was being physically destroyed by epileptic fits. Benthin leaves a wife and one child.

Low Water at Bay City.

BAY CITY, Nov. 19.—The strong southwest wind which prevailed yesterday drove the water out of the Saginaw river, causing all mills to shut down, as it was impossible to float the logs the boats. A heavy rain fell last night, but the wind went down with the rain and the water is now rapidly rising.

New Best Sugar Factory.

FIRE LAKE, Nov. 19.—It seems quite likely that a best sugar factory will be established here in the spring and contracts made with farmers, which will make the growing of the sugar beet an important industry in the Grand Traverse region. Negotiations have been started with Chicago capitalists looking to the equipment of a plant.

Granted a New Trial.

PORT HURON, Nov. 19.—Friends of Thelo Kuehn are rejoicing that the supreme court granted him a new trial. It will be remembered that about a year ago he shot and killed McDonald, upon being convicted was sentenced to twenty-two years at Jackson. The belief is now prevalent that he will be acquitted at the second trial.

Martin for Senator.

TORONTO, Kas., Nov. 19.—The Alliance League official organ, the populists, comes out for Judge John Martin for United States senator. This means, perhaps, that Judge Martin will be the party's candidate for senator, and that the alliance members will at once get in line and work for him.

Suicided Because Thashed.

NASHVILLE, Nov. 19.—Lee Kosher, 14 years of age, son of Joel Kosher, living one mile north of Nashville, committed suicide at 11 o'clock this morning by shooting himself in the stomach with a shotgun. Kosher had been badly beaten by his father, and had committed the deed on account of having received a whipping last night.

Killed in the Rigging.

ESCANABA, Nov. 19.—The steamer Iron Age and consort came in to land the body of John Wright, a seaman who was killed last night. He was caught in a rope by the jib of the vessel and died before he could be reached. He was a Canadian, and leaves a widow in Toronto.

Mills Shot His Wife.

MIAMI, Nov. 19.—William H. Mills confessed to the attempted assassination of his wife last Sunday evening. He shot at her through the window of her brother-in-law's house, where she was visiting at the time. He avows jealousy as the cause. Mrs. Mills is slowly improving.

His Feet of Snow.

INWOOD, Nov. 19.—The severest snowstorm of the season has been in progress since 6 o'clock last night. Several feet of snow has fallen and the drifts are from six to eight feet deep in places. The electric street cars and all railroad trains are blocked.

IT IS PARTY POLICY

So Grover Says at the Manhattan Club Reception

TAKES THE PLACE OF SPOILS

But Mr. Cleveland Carefully Neglects to State When This Change Took Place—Will Redress Pledges.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—President Cleveland was given a reception by the Manhattan club tonight. It was a most notable affair, the magnificent club house being handsomely decorated. Soon after 9 o'clock the hundreds of guests began to arrive, and the halls were well thronged when Mr. Cleveland, who is himself an active member of the club, arrived. Mr. Cleveland stood on a dais in front of the central window, which was draped with silver American flags. Very few of the guests had to be formally presented. Mr. Cleveland recognized nearly everyone and had a hearty grasp and smile for all.

At 10:30 o'clock the guests sat down to the banquet in the main dining-room. Mr. Cleveland had the seat of honor under an oil painting of himself. The walls were draped with flags, and the banners of the democratic clubs of New York.

At 11:15 President Cleveland arose and introduced the guest of the evening in a most timely speech. Mr. Cleveland spoke slowly and was cheered and applauded as he spoke. He said: "I can scarcely do more than assure my fellow members of the Manhattan club and their guests, as representative of the American democracy, in a scriptural phrase, that it is good for me to be here. This is within a few days of an event which I recall with a peculiar gratification."

Assurance of Remembrance.
"Ten years ago, after I had been elected governor of the state of New York, I was tendered a reception by the Manhattan club similar to the one at which we are present tonight. Then I knew for the first time how generous was the democracy of the Manhattan club and how friendly were its members personally to myself."

"The recollection awakened a lively sense of gratitude and appreciation which has been ever present with me. This new evidence of your hospitality and kindness is not only in keeping with your reputation, but is peculiarly fitting and appropriate as regards the time selected. On the first occasion you encouraged me as I began my public career. And now you bid me God speed as I enter on my last stage. All this time I have been a citizen of the state, loyal to her interests, proud of her career and jealous of her supremacy. The pleasure which your greeting affords me is largely enhanced by the fact that this courtesy I receive from the hands of my fellow-townsmen, who I am proud to call friends. Since the occasion I have recalled, even though have transpired cannot help suggesting that political conditions are now greatly changed. The American people have become politically thoughtful and more watchful than ten years ago. They are considering how vastly greater questions than then."

Party Policy.
"Party policy has become the important thing in contradistinction to party spoils. The distribution of party rewards for party action is no longer the mainpring of a political campaign. The situation must be gravely and intelligently met by those in charge of our political organs. No party I care not whether democratic or republican can get the support of the mass of voters by merely promising party rewards for party supremacy. The people will be satisfied with nothing less than the redemption of the sacred pledges made to them collectively by the administration of wise policies and the carrying on of an honest government. I would not have this otherwise."

I am willing that the democratic party should see that they may only hope successfully to retain the confidence of the people in conducting the situation by being absolutely and patriotically true to itself and its professions. This is the assured guarantee of success. I know no other. Whatever the future may have in store for me, whatever it may be, I shall always carry with me and cherish a lively and comforting remembrance of the kindness of the Manhattan club."

There was uproarious applause at the conclusion of Mr. Cleveland's speech. "Three cheers for the next president," were called for by President Cleveland and given with a will.

What the Students Are Doing to Make Life Enjoyable.

ANN ARBOR, Nov. 19.—Now that the campaign is over and those students who went home to vote have returned to college, class politics begin to wax warm.
